As per SPPU guidelines Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) requires concurrent evaluation system which makes the learning process continuous and learner-centric. The evaluation is designed to recognize the capability and talent of a student. A continuous assessment system in semester system (also known as internal assessment/comprehensive assessment) is spread through the duration of course by the teaching faculty.

As a part of concurrent evaluation, the learners are evaluating on a continuous basis by the faculty members for developing students. Concurrent evaluation components are designed for monitoring the student learning & development. The faculty shares the outcome of each concurrent evaluation component with the students for betterment.

Individual subject faculty member have the flexibility to design the concurrent evaluation components for balanced assessment of student capabilities across Attitude, Skills & Knowledge, (ASK) dimensions based on variety of concurrent evaluation parameters which is assigned by the university.

The process of concurrent evaluation plan preparation is as follows:

Concurrent Evaluation plan preparation:

After the finalization of faculty wise subjects (External & Internal) each subject faculty starts to prepare their concurrent evaluation plan on the basis of university guidelines which includes minimum three concurrent evaluation components (30 marks) for full credit course and five concurrent evaluation components (50 marks) for each half credit course. As per University guidelines Subject faculty selects concurrent evaluation parameters.

Academic coordinator checks the course wise parameters from course files in front of subject faculty give suggestions if required. After that Director finalized the concurrent evaluation parameters with the signature.

The common criteria of concurrent evaluation parameters assessment are student's subject knowledge, time & execution.

To conduct daily activities in an institute we need to prepare and disseminate information to utilize process and design desired outcome/output for further utilization and this information cycle we find everywhere. There are three types on information dissemination

- a. Internal Information Dissemination: The “office use information only” can be disseminated internally to facilitate internal activities. The information cannot be spread outside the organization at any cause with prior approval from competent authority.
- b. Public Information Dissemination: The information which is meant to disseminate for public e.g. Web portals, Manuals, Brochures etc.... This type of information is meant for public knowledge and open for all. The information dissemination always transparent, true and authentic, hence, it required more care and multiple revisions before sharing the information.
- c. Confidential Information Dissemination:

2. Information Dissemination:

- a. In-charge/Coordinator/ Head The information originator/generator revise the information and authenticate the information with own preparatory signature.
- b. The information generator/originator produces specific information through proper channel to the Director.
 - i. Proper Channel: a Communication channel created/defined by competent authority to check the genuinityof the produced information.
- c. The Director discusses the information with information in-charge/coordinator (information Originator/Generator) and signs the information document.
- d. The signature of the Director only makes Information Document Authenticate and genuine.
- e. Once the Director authenticates information Document, then only In charge/Coordinator/Head can disseminate information through Photocopy/ Mail/scan or any other digital and/or traditional formats.

3. Information dissemination among learner:

- a. The information associated to learner is communicating through institute notice board, WhatsApp formal group, website and e-mail. This information is related with results, programs, events, exams, admission and guest lecture etc.
- b. Internal and external information is communicating with proper media on the basis of information and type of learner.

Students have valuable insights into classroom teaching and how it might be improved. After all, no one observes us more than they do.

The only direct, daily observers of a professor's classroom teaching performance are the students in the classroom. Students are thus a potentially valuable source of information about their professors' teaching. Student Feedback is an essential part of learning, especially when we want to improve our practice and attain high professional standards.

To help faculty members hone their performance is nothing more than a logical extension of this expectation. Just as students need feedback and guidance to correct errors, faculty members require feedback and helpful direction if they are to improve their performance. The process of student's feedback is as follows:

Preparation of students feedback sheet:

1. Respective class coordinators prepare the students feedback sheet (Faculty-subject-wise) with the discussion to Academic coordinator and Director.
2. Student's feedback sheet includes 10 to 12 evaluation parameters which were judged by students through rating scale.

Collection of Feedback Forms:

3. After completion of syllabus, class coordinators distribute and collect the feedback forms from the student's then one research faculty make analysis of the collected forms. Preparation of analysis is with faculty-subject wise.

Call for meeting:

4. Academic coordinator calls the meeting for the discussion of student's feedback.
5. Those faculties have satisfactorily feedback about their respective subjects; these faculties appreciated by the Director and those who have unsatisfactorily feedback, the Director discussed with that faculty member and take a remark.

Students have valuable insights into classroom teaching and how it might be improved. After all, no one observes us more than they do.

The only direct, daily observers of a professor's classroom teaching performance are the students in the classroom. Students are thus a potentially valuable source of information about their professors' teaching. Student Feedback is an essential part of learning, especially when we want to improve our practice and attain high professional standards.

To help faculty members hone their performance is nothing more than a logical extension of this expectation. Just as students need feedback and guidance to correct errors, faculty members require feedback and helpful direction if they have to improve their performance. The process of student's feedback is as follows:

Preparation of students feedback sheet:

1. Respective class coordinators prepare the students feedback sheet (Faculty-subject-wise) with ERP coordinator on ERP with the discussion with Academic coordinator and Director.
2. Student's feedback sheet includes 10 to 12 evaluation parameters on which students are going to judge Faculties through rating scale on ERP. This Feedback form is allowed to fill for a stipulated time, after which students responses are freeze.

Collection of Feedback Forms:

3. After completion of syllabus, ERP coordinators allow the feedback form to be filled by student on student's ERP then one research faculty make analysis of the collected forms. Preparation of analysis is faculty-subject wise.
