2. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

ZIBACAR organized Zoom Meeting on the topic of Explore research Trends with SLR with VELS University. The first step in conducting an SLR on research trends is to clearly define the scope of the study. This involves identifying the specific topic or research area of interest and establishing inclusion and exclusion criteria for selecting relevant literature. Researchers use systematic search strategies to identify relevant literature. This typically involves searching multiple databases, such as academic journals, conference proceedings, and specialized repositories, using predefined search terms and filters.

3. OUTCOME:

- 1) SLR helps researchers gain a comprehensive understanding of the current state of research within a particular field or topic area.
- 2) Through SLR, researchers can uncover emerging trends and areas of interest within the research domain.
- 3) SLR can reveal gaps or inconsistencies in the existing body of literature. By identifying areas where research is sparse or conflicting findings exist, researchers can pinpoint knowledge gaps that warrant further investigation.
